Archdiocese of Hartford and Foundation for the Advancement of Catholic Schools Resolve Dispute

The Archdiocese of Hartford and the Foundation for the Advancement of Catholic Schools (FACS) are pleased to share that both parties have resolved a governance dispute that was initiated in 2021. With this resolution, the Archdiocese and FACS will resume their collaboration in supporting the students and schools of the Archdiocese of Hartford.

“As Archbishop of Hartford, I have been clear since day one of my tenure that the flourishing of Catholic education is a priority for me,” said Archbishop Christopher J. Coyne. “This resolution will allow the Archdiocese of Hartford and FACS to recommence their work together with the shared goal of supporting Catholic education and the students who are formed through it.”

Patricia Teufel, Chair and President of FACS, said, “With the settlement of the governance dispute, FACS looks forward to a renewed and invigorated collaboration with the Archdiocese of Hartford, in support of its evangelization mission and the families wishing to provide a quality Catholic education for their children.”

The Foundation for the Advancement of Catholic Schools is a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit committed to transforming the lives of children by expanding access to Catholic education in the Archdiocese of Hartford. FACS provides critical scholarships that open "doors of opportunity" for students and families. Learn more: <https://FACSHartford.org>.
